

Approving the sale will hurt the only DBS provider that is expanding their High Definition offerings and advancing HDTV in the US. We need a strong third satellite provider to make the delivery of HDTV competitive. Allowing the sale to go through will allow Dish and DirectTV to remain dormant regarding HD development and will be a huge step backward. I worry about the monopoly that these two lazy behemoths will enjoy without competition.